NUMB. 5040

THURSDAY, JUNE 13, 1745.

THE following Papers have been tranſmitted to us from one of our Colonies, in order to be publiſhed here, that the World may have a juſt Idea of the Affection and Gratitude, which an equal and juſt Adminiſtration excites in the Boſoms of our Countrymen ſettled in America. We the rather comply with their Requeſt, from the Senſe we have, that whatever is ſaid of the deceaſed Governor Popple will be extremely grateful to Numbers who were happy in his Acquaintance here; and who cannot but be pleaſed when they are informed that his ſingular Virtues procured him the general Eſteem of his Majeſty's Subjects in that Government, with which he was intruſted. Beſides, as he was extremely well known here, theſe Pieces will appear with the greater Propriety; ſince many are able to teſtify, at the Time they are read, that they contain a juſt Picture drawn from the Life; and not a glittering Character, that owes all its Luſtre to the Writer's Imagination.

To the Author of the DAILY GAZETTEER.

SIR, Barbados, January 18, 1744.

YEſterday arrived a Veſſel from Bermuda, which confirmed the diſmal Account we had the Day before, of the Death of the moſt worthy good Governor Popple, who for ſome little Time before the 8th of November laſt, ſeemed to be in better Health than he had before enjoy'd; but the Collector of that Iſland, Mr. Lewis, having died of a Fever, and his Excellency attending the Funeral, and ſtanding too long in the Church-yard bare-headed, late at Night, he was ſeized the next Day with a violent Fever, Pain in his Head, a very great Sickneſs at his Stomach, a reaching to vomit, and a Coldneſs all over him; and ſo continued till he expired the 17th of November: He had ſtrong Convulſions; and his Vomits, the three laſt Days before he died, were nothing but black Choler and Blood.

At the Governor's Funeral, the whole Country ſeemed to teſtify the Senſe they had of the Loſs of ſo worthy a Ruler, by their unuſual Marks of Reſpect, in ſending to Town their Troops of Horſe, and Regiments of Foot, equipped in the beſt Manner poſſible, to attend the Solemnity; the Preſident (General Jones), and five of the ſenior Counſellors, were Bearers; Maſter Harry Popple, only Son of the deceaſed Governor, and Capt. Piggott, a Relation of the Family's, walked next to the Corps, as Chief Mourners; then followed the Brethren Free Maſons (of which Society his Excellency, a little before his Death, had been created, by a Patent from England, Deputy Grand Maſter) in all their proper Clothing and Jewels, and in deep Mourning; and after them the reſt of the Council, the Aſſembly, and a great Number of Country Gentlemen. The whole Proceſſion was extreamly decent and regular; and no Governor was ever interred, in that Iſland, in ſo magnificent and reſpectful a Manner: And tho' there had formerly been Diſputes in the Government, yet they had been prudently ended by the cool, wiſe, and candid Behaviour of the Governor; and was it poſſible to reſtore Life, not an Individual would refuſe parting with any thing to bring him back; ſo true is the Saying, We know not how to value a Friend, till we come to loſe him. The Funeral Sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Chappel (a Gentleman of great Merit, good Temper, and much eſteemed, who died the Week following of a bilious Fever, which had never been known to rage there before): The Text was taken from the Lamentations, Chap. v. Ver. 15. The Joy of our Heart is ceaſed; our Dance is turned into Mourning. The excellent and much-lamented Governor, was, in Truth, a Gentleman, whoſe real Character came up to all that could be wiſhed for or deſired, in frail Man. He was Honeſt, without Intereſt; Friendly, without Deſign; Religious, attended with Reaſon, and not ſwadded up ſo tight as to make it deformed; Pleaſant in Converſation; Courteous to all, hating nothing but Vice; gentle in Reproving; Bold in Danger, he being armed with Innocence, that inſpired him with Succeſs. In ſhort, he was the beſt of Husbands, the beſt of Fathers, the beſt of Friends; and a moſt diſcreet, juſt, and good Governor. A Gentleman who had ſo particular Attachment to this excellent Ruler, and who was very judicious, and ſcorned Adulation as much as he did Falſhood and Injuſtice, truly ſaid of him, 'That he had ſo much Humanity and Good Nature, that every Time 'I ſee him, he grows in my Eſteem; for, I think, I 'never ſaw ſo much genuine and true Goodneſs in any 'Character; flowing from the Heart, and a happy 'Frame of Mind, which, it is eaſy to ſee, muſt act 'ſteadily and conſtantly the ſame. His ſole Delight 'ſeems to be in doing Good; is always contriving or 'doing ſome beneficial Thing for ſomebody or other; 'and you cannot lay upon him a greater Obligation, 'than to apply to him, either in your own Behalf, or 'your Friends. He has, beſides, a good deal of Know-'ledge in many Parts of Learning, and very good 'Senſe; ſo that his univerſal Humanity does not ariſe 'from any want of Diſcernment, which is quick and 'penetrating, but from real Virtue; none of the leaſt 'Attainments of which is, perhaps, to make us pity; 'and ſeem at leaſt to overlook not only the Follies, but 'many of the Faults, of Mankind.'

Will not thoſe who knew this excellent Man, ſay of him, as was ſaid of the late Lord Howe, the incomparable Governor of Barbados; that after he had truly ſerved his Generation according to the Will of God, he fell aſleep; and add 'Farewell bleſt Soul! The ſubli-'meſt Genius, the moſt exalted Spirit that appeared on 'this Side the Globe! Thou art gone from a falſe ungrateful World, to be a Companion, as thou well deſervedſt to be, with Saints and Angels; where all thy 'Virtues are fully known, and where only they could 'be ſufficiently rewarded. But we alas! are left to feel 'the want of them; which 'tis to be feared we ſhall 'long feel, and long have reaſon to lament.'

The Governor has left a Lady, a Son, and two Daughters, who are much admired by all that know them. They bear the mighty Loſs with great Reſignation, and as true Chriſtians. The Preſident, who is a worthy Gentleman, ſhews the ſame Regard to the Family now, as when the Governor was alive; allowing them to reſide in the Government Houſe, till ſuch Time as they think fit to depart, or another Governor arrives; and no doubt the whole Legiſlative Body will be as ſerviceable to them, as the Circumſtances of the Country can admit of. I cannot help earneſtly wiſhing thoſe Gentlemen would attentively read, and coolly conſider, what ſtands recorded in the Second Volume of Caribeana, concerning Lord Howe; for, as they muſt feel the like Sentiments that laudably were in this Iſland, on that lamentable mournful Occaſion, ſo I hope they will produce an Act of the like Purport, the better to manifeſt the Gratitude of the People in Bermuda, for the Benefits they received from the juſt and prudent Adminiſtration of his late Excellency Alured Popple, Eſq; their deceaſed Governor; and for enabling the Treaſurer to pay a certain Sum of the Publick Money, to his moſt worthy but diſconſolate Relict, for neceſſary Uſes and Purpoſes. For, certainly, ſuch a Teſtimony of Gratitude muſt be approved, and much commended, by the Wiſe and Judicious.

As I have great Reaſon to be deeply affected for the Death of a moſt valuable dearly beloved Friend, I read with muſt Grief the excellent Pieces wrote on Lord Howe's Death.

—— of Comfort, no Man ſpeak;
Lets talk of Graves, and Worms, and Epitaphs!
Make Duſt our Paper, and with rainy Eyes,
Write Sorrow in the Boſom of the Earth.

Cou'd none but ſuch a killing Stroke ſuffice,
To break our rocky Hearts, and thaw our frozen Eyes!
He is fled,—

To the happy Few who govern'd well below,
And for their Labour deathleſs Pleaſures know:
For doing Good, he knew, was being Great.

'Tis to the Vulgar, Death too harſh appears;
The Ill we feel is only in our Fears.
To die, is landing on ſome ſilent Shore,
Where Billows never break, nor Tempeſts roar;
E'er well we feel the friendly Stroke 'tis o'er,

His Life was glorious, and ſerene his Death,
His Soul the ſame, firm to his lateſt Breath:
Stupendous Grief! that ſmote us by Surprize,
And ſnatch'd away the Pleaſure of our Eyes.

For all he ſaid, like all he did, was great.
Does Heav'n ſuch Gifts as theſe beſtow on Men,
So ſoon, alas! to call them back again.

And they lamented Moſt, who knew him Beſt.

I am, Yours.

An Epitaph on Governor Popple, who died at Bermuda, November 17, 1744, in the Year of his Age, after nine Days Illneſs, of a Bilious Fever.

The Good Governor,
Alured Popple, Eſq;
During the Courſe of his Adminiſtration,
Which, to the inconſolable Grief of the Inhabitants,
Continued but ſix Years,
Of the many Strangers, who reſorted thither for their Health,
The Obſerving eaſily diſcovered in Him,
Under the graceful Veil of Modeſty,
An Underſtanding and Abilities equal
To a more important Truſt:
The Gay and Polite were charm'd with the unaffected
Elegance, and amiable Simplicity, of his Manners:
And ALL were chear'd
By his Hoſpitality and diffuſive Benevolence,
Which ſteadily flowed, and undiſturbed,
From the Heart.
To praiſe, according to his Merit,
The Deceaſed,
Would be but too ſenſible a Reproach,
To the Living:
And to enumerate the many rare Virtues
Which ſhone united in the Governor
Of that little Spot,
Were to tell how many great Talents,
And excellent Endowments, are
Wanting in ſome,
Whom the Capriciouſneſs of Fortune,
Expoſes
In a more elevated and conſpicuous Station.

LONDON.

They write from Munich, that it appears from certain Circumſtances, that there really are ſeparate and ſecret Articles, to the late Treaty concluded with the Court of Vienna: But they have been ſo effectually concealed, that neither the French nor the Pruſſian Miniſters Miniſters have been able to diſcover them.

The aſſociated Circles of the Empire having at laſt come to an Agreement, and fixed their reſpective Quotas, for forming an Army of Obſervation, Field-Marſhal Count Seckendorff is ſet out for Augsbourg, in order to ſettle the Time and Place of that Army's Rendezvouz.

They write from the Hague, that Count Podeville, Miniſter from his Pruſſian Majeſty, has lately received a Courier from Berlin, with ſome very important Diſpatches, the Contents of which will be made known to us by the next Poſt.

The Molly, White, from Carolina for London, was taken by a French Man of War, and is ſince retaken by a Privateer, and carried into Guernſey.

Several Workmen, by a late Order of the Government, are employed to repair and fortify the Harbour of Lyme in Dorſetſhire, which has not been repaired for many Years.

On Tueſday laſt a Diſpenſation paſſed the Great Seal, to enable Walwyn Morgan, M. A. to hold the Vicarage of Watford, in the County and Dioceſe of Hereford, together with the Chapel of Ruardin and the Rectory of Llanſanfried, in the County and Dioceſe of St. David's.

Sir WALTER RALEGH's Hiſtory of the World is a Work of ſo vaſt a Compaſs, ſuch endleſs Variety, that no Genius, but one adventurous at his own, durſt have undertaken that great Deſign. I do not apprehend any great Difficulty in collecting and common-placing an Univerſal Hiſtory from the whole Body of Hiſtorians; that is nothing but mechanic Labour. But to digeſt the ſeveral Authors in his Mind, to take in all their Majeſty, Strength, and Beauty, to raiſe the Spirit of meaner Hiſtorians, and to equal all the Excellencies of the beſt, is Sir Walter's peculiar Praiſe. His Style is the moſt perfect, the happieſt, and moſt beautiful, of the Age he wrote in; majeſtic, clear, and manly; and he appears every where ſo ſuperior, rather than unequal to his Subject, that the Spirit of Rome and Athens ſeems to be breathed into his Work.
